ORDER

On this 23rd day of November, 2026, upon consideration of Shakeema Clark's ("Defendant") pro se Motion to Modify Sentence (the "Motion") made pursuant to Superior Court Rule of Criminal Procedure ("Rule") 35(b),[1] the sentence imposed upon Defendant, and the record in this case, it appears to the Court that:

1. On July 15, 2026, Defendant was found guilty of violating her probation.[2]

2. On July 15, 2026, the Court sentenced Defendant to 18 years of Level V time, suspended after four months for 6 months of Level IV DOC discretion, followed by 12 months of Level III time with GPS monitoring.[3]

3. On August 10, 2026, Defendant filed the Motion, requesting that the Court allow her to replace her Level IV time with an Intensive Outpatient Program

[1] Docket Item (hereinafter "D.I.") 48 (hereinafter "Mot.") in Case ID No. 2004003401. All references to the docket herein refer to Case ID No. 2004003401.

[3] D.I. 47.

("IOP"), followed by 2 years Level III time either without GPS or in TASC.[4] The bases for Defendant's request are her desire to start a new job to pay her restitution early, and the hardship her incarceration imposes on her family.[5]

4. The Court considers motions for modification of sentence under Rule 35(b). Before addressing the merits of a motion, the Court first considers the applicable procedural bars.[6] There are no applicable procedural bars, and thus the Court considers the Motion on the merits.

5. The Motion is denied. Defendant's sentence was appropriate at the time of sentencing. The Court imposed the sentence after a thorough review of the nature of the violation and the sentencing information available on the record, and the Court declines to recalibrate an appropriate sentence on the basis articulated by Defendant.

6. Accordingly, Defendant's Motion for Sentence Modification is DENIED.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Sheldon K. Rennie, Judge
