

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
October 27, 2011

Justice Holland's New Book
Published in Taiwan

A new book by Justice Randy J. Holland was released this week in Taipei, Taiwan. The title is Delaware Corporation Law: Selected Cases. The book contains edited decisions by the Delaware Supreme Court and commentary. It is being published in Chinese only for initial distribution in Taiwan and later in China. It will be used primarily by law students and was translated into Chinese by professors from many of Taiwan's leading law schools.

In a preface to Justice Holland's book, the former Chief Justice of Taiwan, In-Jaw Lai, wrote: "To understand the United States Company Law, people must study the Delaware legal system." Justice Holland has worked with Chief Justice Lai for the last few years in developing a commercial division within Taiwan's trial courts. Several judges from Taiwan have visited Delaware's courts to learn about deciding commercial cases.

The release of Justice Holland's book coincided with the delivery of his keynote address to the Taiwan Corporate Governance Association. Once again, he met with former Chief Justice Lai and some of Taiwan's highest ranking judges to discuss issues relating to commercial courts and judicial ethics. Justice Holland also spoke at both of Taiwan's stock exchanges and the National Taiwan University School of Law.

For more information, contact Stephen D. Taylor, Court Administrator of the Delaware Supreme Court, 302-577-8702.