²⁸ The purpose of this Conversion Table is to facilitate comparison between current law and the Improved Code. Therefore, the table lists each current law provision and identifies the Improved Code Section(s) that correspond to it. Such correspondence does not connote identity; yet, it highlights the relationship between current law provision(s) and the Improved Code and provides reference to the appropriate section of the Commentary that addresses that provision(s) in more detail. Note that some current law provisions do not have corresponding Sections in the Improved Code. These provisions are addressed separately in the “conforming amendments” bill and are also mentioned in the commentary. Specifically, these are current law provisions that conflict with the Improved Code, made redundant by it, or concern matters outside of its scope (e.g., procedural or evidentiary rules). These provisions are marked “C.A.” Provisions that are not retained are marked as “(NR)” in the Conversion Table; if retained they are marked “(R)”. Note that something retained may not have been retained in its entirety or may have been modified. The appropriate Section or Chapter number is added to provide reference to the most helpful Commentary addressing that particular provision and the reasons for the change. Note that some current law provisions in the C.A. requiring minor modifications (e.g., pinpoint cite update) are not included in this Conversion Table.
