

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
iCivics and Law Day 2012

The Women and the Law Section of the Delaware State Bar Association in conjunction with the Supreme Court of Delaware will present iCivics in public junior and middle schools throughout the state of Delaware during Law Day, May 1, 2012. This effort, spearheaded by Superior Court Judge Jan R. Jurden and Women and the Law Section chair, Laina M. Herbert, Esquire of Prickett, Jones & Elliott, P.A., has attracted over 225 members from the Delaware Judiciary and the Delaware State Bar Association to assist in making the presentations.

iCivics was developed by retired U.S. Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor and a team of educational experts to promote civic education in schools. According to the National Assessment of Education Progress, only 22% of eighth graders were proficient in civics. iCivics consists of video computer games that teach students about the Constitution and the Bill of Rights and was designed for middle school students in 2010. At the end of 2011 nearly two million iCivics games were played throughout the United States. Fifty states are now promoting iCivics as an educational tool. Justice Randy J. Holland of the Delaware Supreme Court serves as the Delaware Chair for iCivics.

During FY 2011, 7 new games were added to the iCivics web site (iCivics.org) including 16 new lesson plans. Some of the new games include "Immigration Nation"; Responsibility Launcher", "People's Pie" and "Activate". All were designed to teach students about the responsibility of citizenship.

"I am extremely proud of the Women and the Law Section and all the volunteers who have dedicated their time and talents to take iCivics into our Delaware Elementary and Middle Schools. We have over 225 judges and lawyers involved, and as a result of this outpouring of support, we will reach over 100 schools and thousands of children. As Justice Sandra Day O'Connor notes, "Our public schools were founded to educate children to become citizens. We must not forget that fundamental purpose." Thanks to Justice O'Connor for developing iCivics and to Delaware Supreme Court Justice Randy J. Holland of the Delaware Supreme Court for serving as the state chair for iCivics in Delaware, we will be helping school children throughout the State not only to become citizens, but to become knowledgeable and active citizens. In addition to Justice Holland and the members of the Supreme Court, I want to publicly thank Chair Laina M. Herbert, the Women and the Law Section, Franny Haney from the Administrative Office of the Courts, and the many volunteers from the Delaware State Bar Association who are making this contribution and commemorating Law Day 2012 in this notable way, cited Judge Jan R. Jurden. Laina M. Herbert added, "Without the enthusiastic response from the schools and the team leaders who have coordinated the volunteers in each district, the Women and the Law Section's Law Day effort would not have been possible. I look forward to working with the volunteers and the schools to deliver iCivics to the students on Law Day, May 1, 2012.”
